RISKS LIFE TO AID SICK AND WOUNDED

Miss Nellie Bundy, of Buffalo, N. Y., is now on the battle-line in Serbia administering to the sick and wounded there as a Red Cross nurse. Before she left for Serbia she was informed that her chances of contracting typhus fever there and dying from the disease were sixty per cent. She laughingly replied that she would take the forty per cent that was left.

HERMIT KILLS SELF IN THREE ATTEMPTS

HANS WESTBY, THE "HERMIT OF EMERALD GROVE," ENDS LIFE WITH GUN THIS MORNING.

FIRE HIS OWN HOME

Trice to Hang Self and Slashes Wrist and Then After Setting Shook Affire, Discharges Gun into Heart.

After two unsuccessful attempts to kill himself by slitting his wrist with a knife and by hanging, Hans Westby, the "Hermit of Emerald Grove," ended his life early this morning by firing a discharge from a weapon into his left side near the heart. Not only did Westby, who is seventy-six years of age, inflict two horrible wounds upon himself in his suicide, but set fire to his house while doing the act and was found in the blazing corner of the cellar of his shack, which is situated just north of Emerald Grove.

Westby is a character known to everyone in the vicinity of the hamlet. Nine years ago he made his home in that village with his wife. Two years later his wife died and was buried in the cemetery. Without available money he settled on a plot of farm land owned by John Clark. Kindly neighbors, who gave him aid, made a livelihood possible for Westby. On the quarter of an acre of ground he had planted a small garden, a small plot of tobacco and made a meager but respectable living doing cobbling and harness repair work. He was urged by some to accept county aid and become an inmate of the county poor farm, but the old man was too proud to accept this means of his declining days and despite his bent and broken body chose to work at his trade and on the quiet advance years brought feebleness and as a result he became more and more dependent on the kindly neighbors who respected him for his courage and his industry. For the last month his health failed more rapidly than usual and the quiet strange actions he had been his custom on bright evenings to sing in his native language and play an accordion, but was most manically. This morning shortly after five William Lloyd, who lives on a farm about a quarter of a mile from Westby, discovered smoke coming from the shack. Calling to his hired man, they both hurried down the road and found the house filled with smoke but were unable to find the aged man. They then hurried back to the road and found the house filled with smoke but were unable to find the aged man. They then hurried back to the road and found the house filled with smoke but were unable to find the aged man.

An investigation conducted by Sheriff Chamberlain and Deputy Sheriff Hogan revealed that Westby had made three separate attempts to take his life. It is thought that from a revolver, but no such weapon has as yet been discovered. Instead, a single-barreled hammerlock "blunderbuss" was picked up near the cellar corner where Westby was found. He had barely begun to use the weapon to end his life when the smoke had been field close to the body before he was discharged. An examination of the body of the man, who was found in the corner of the cellar, showed that he had been shot in the back and the left arm drenched in blood. When the smoke was loosened at once the life was extinct and at once the office of Sheriff Chamberlain was notified. Death evidently followed from the gun wound in his side.

It is probable that the recluse made final preparations to end his life last night. It may have been his plan to destroy all the buildings and equipment on the place for he had been under the other shacks and even this morning he was thought to be slithering with the jagged instrument used to sever the arteries and cause around his neck. Only three feet in length and must have been slipped, as there was a knot at the free end of the rope. Failing in these attempts it is supposed Westby became desperate and used the gun, while the house was burning over his head.

As the house is razed to the ground there is no means of discovering the exact details of the tragedy. The county authorities satisfied themselves that there was no evidence of foul play and then turned the case over to Postmaster Asa Anderson, as the surviving relative would not take charge of the body. Westby will be buried beside the body of his wife at the Emerald Grove cemetery tomorrow morning to the present plans of the officials in charge.

Westby, it is said, is a native of Norway and came to this country with his wife a number of years ago. One child died in infancy. After living at Clinton he moved to Emerald Grove and settled on a small farm which he sold shortly after the death of his wife, whose loss left him somewhat demented. The people of Emerald Grove cared for him and extended him aid in many ways under guise of work in cobbling and harness repairing, knowing of his pride against accepting charity. He leaves one brother, Edward Westby, and Mrs. A. Westby, a sister, both of Clinton.

PRETTY BARN DANCE AT CRAIGHURST FARM

Thirty Couples Are Royally Entertained Last Evening by J. A. Craig on New Farm Site.

A novel event of the season was held last evening at the summer home of J. A. Craig and family, known as Craighurst, and located seven miles east of Janesville, on the Milwaukee road, when the Craig family entertained thirty couples from Janesville and vicinity to a barn dance. The dance was a dedication to the large barn just completed on the farm, and which will be put into use in another week.

The guests arrived about eight o'clock by automobiles, the Hatch or the opening music at Craighurst. Lanterns and large searchlights furnished ample light for the spacious second floor of the structure. During the dance, which was completed on the farm, and which will be put into use in another week.

WHAT PENSIONS COST TEACHERS OF COUNTY

Pedagogues in District Schools and Villages Pay in $721 During Past Twelve Months.

Rural and village school teachers of Rock county have paid in $721.46 to the pension fund during the past twelve months, according to the figures compiled and sent to the county treasurer at Superintendant Antisdel's office. Practically every teacher in the county contributes at least one per cent of salary to the fund. The only exception is in the case of teachers who did not elect to come under the system in the period ending in 1912, after which all teachers were required to pay their share. The money, which is deducted from their salaries by the school district treasurers, finally finds its way into the county treasury, and then into the state pension fund at Madison.

Following is the list of the amounts from the towns and villages: Avon, $24.20; Beloit, $24.42; Center, $37.80; Bradford, $27.20; Clinton, $38.55; Fulton, $41.37; Harmony, $27.85; Janesville, $21.70; Johnson, $27.55; La Prairie, $21.74; Lima, $40.50; Milton, $35.05; Mognia, $23.28; Newark, $24.33; Rock, $22.40; Spring Valley, $14.85; Turtle, $27.55; Union, $29.50; $34.05; Milton Junction, $57.02; Orfordville, $13.30.

HOB0 VIOLINIST IS GIVEN SIXTY DAYS

Played at Apollo Wednesday. Then Appeared on Job Drunk Thursday.—Would Attack W. T. Sherer.

A certain young man, D. C. Tonger by name, was a sadder but wiser gentleman this morning in the municipal court, where Judge Maxfield passed sentence on him for twenty-five dollars fine or sixty days in the county jail under the commitment law, for being intoxicated and disorderly about the Apollo Theatre Thursday afternoon.

Tonger, who says he is a vaudeville artist during the winter months, appeared to Judge Sherer for a job playing the violin at the Apollo theatre on Wednesday night. When he appeared yesterday afternoon for duty he was clad in old clothes, and was badly intoxicated. When informed that he must leave the theatre at once, he demanded his pay for playing Wednesday, which amounted to something over a dollar and a half. Upon refusal to pay him, Tonger raised considerable disturbance with abusive language until Smith, Tonger carried with him an empty beer bottle, and threatened assault Proprietor Sherer, when he was taken from the show house by Smith.

Shelbygan, July 9.—Otto Jahn, 27, and Miss Mary Novak were seriously injured last night when the motorcycle on which they were riding collided with a buggy on the concrete road to Shelbygan Falls. It is said the rider did not stop when the motorcycle was thrown to the pavement, and parties in autos returning from the Falls an hour later found the young people unconscious on the pavement.

They were removed to a hospital, where it was found that each had suffered a compound fracture of both legs. It is feared Miss Novak's left leg will have to be amputated.

VERRULES CLAIMS OF R. R. COMMISSION

Judge Stevens Overruled the Demurrer of Commission on Complaint in Janesville Telephone Case.

Madison, July 9.—Judge E. Ray Stevens of the Dane county circuit court has overruled the demurrer of the railroad commission to the complaint in the action of the Rock County Telephone company against the commission and E. D. McGowan of Janesville.

Upon the petition of Mr. McGowan the commission ordered a physical connection between the Rock County and the Wisconsin telephone companies to be made. The Rock County company took the matter into court, declaring that the order of the commission is unreasonable and unlawful.

mal regents will compose the central board of the Staudenmayer substitute. Two hours of debate preceded the vote.

The vote was as follows: For the Staudenmayer substitute—Arnold, Barwig, Biehler, Bosshard, Bray, Cuhertson, Everett, Glenn, Huber, Jennings, Monk, Kulberger, Potts, Rollmann, Skogmo, Staudenmayer, Stevens, Weissleder—18. Against—Albers, Bennett, Burke, Cunningham, Fairchild, Hanson, Kellogg, Martin, Perry, Whitman—10. Paired—Ackley against the substitute, Tomkins for.

Senator Burke's amendment to change the composition of the board to five members appointed by the governor, was defeated, 15 to 12. A second portion of the Burke amendment, however, was incorporated, which gives the board created under the Staudenmayer bill power to supervise the finances of the common schools, and to supervise land purchases and erection of buildings. An amendment by Senator Everett to change the name of the board to the same lines as the Burke amendment was defeated by a vote of 13 to 15. When the senate adjourned there was still pending a substitute by Senator Burke creating a commission of seven members with broader powers as to finances of all schools, including the rural schools, than proposed in the Staudenmayer substitute. In the house the bill was passed last night, the original Vandenberg bill was favored by Senators Bennett, Burke and Ackley. The only speech against the bill and for the Staudenmayer substitute was by Senator Bosshard.

Invisible Ink Known to Romans.
Invisible ink, which figures in the espionage trial, appears to have been known since the early days of writing, for both Ovid and Pliny give recipes for the preparation of such a fluid, the one from milk, the other from various vegetable juices. In the middle ages many writers mention "magnetic" and "magic" inks, the action of which some of them averred to be miraculous. Today such fluids are technically known as "sympathetic inks," and there are numerous patents for their manufacture.

Latin America.

The term Latin America includes all the countries of South America, of Central America and Mexico, so called because they were settled and peopled by Latin races, chiefly Spanish. They all speak the Spanish language in different degrees of purity, except Brazil, where Portuguese is the national language, and Haiti, where French is national. Portuguese and French, however, are classed as Latin languages.

George Randolph Chester

Having completed a course of instruction in his "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" stories, showing anyone who follows it how to become wealthy, George Randolph Chester now takes a new turn and shows his audience how to be good. In the new serial "The Ball of Fire," which we have arranged to publish in installment form, Mr. Chester descends upon the modern tendency toward commercialism in everything, and especially that of making a business enterprise of a church.

It is a rapidly moving story with a well-defined romance centered largely around a beautiful western girl who visits her uncle in New York city. It is one of the best novels Chester has ever written and one you should not fail to read.

WHITE SOX PLAYING LEAGUE SENSATION

Steady Climb of Chicago Americans Is Now Worrying Other Managers Considerably.

Serious attention is now being paid to the Chicago White Sox by other clubs in the American league, as the Sox have thoroughly demonstrated their caliber as a pennant winning team. Other clubs were prone to regard this a month ago but their steady rise, except for a five game slump, with such an alarming steadiness have changed this idea until the other seven managers are campaigning to check the rampant Chicago men.

Those chiefly concerned over the pace of the Sox are the Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers who appear to be about the only clubs that have a good chance to cop the pennant honors. Whatever Manager Rowland, or Eddie Collins have done for the Sox, they are certainly pulling before the wind of good fortune. No serious injuries to players have been suffered and they have been playing better than they were generally suspected of being capable. The one freak change of the Sox is their batting for in past years, the Chicago Americans were the joke of the league when it came to the use of the big stick. Winning games without hits made them the "hitless wonder" but now the team is sucking that around the top and Rowland has gathered together an array of talent who can smack the ball in all cases it is the batting that counts in a show down and with the season half gone and no signs of a serious slump, it looks as if the Sox will be fighting for the world's honors.

The most striking thing about the Sox is that they are almost daily coming from behind and winning out. They are playing just the kind of ball that won for the Boston Braves in their record breaking climb last year. For pitcher the Sox are better off than any other club in the American circuit. All their hurlers are going great guns and they have a wide assortment in fingers in their department. Set is rated as being one of the best and Faber with his long winning list tops the league. Cicotte is showing usual form and Henz and Russell are winning games. In Schalk the Sox have probably the best catcher in the American circuit. A hard worker and a finished base thrower and experienced, he is showing more stuff than any other backstop. Despite his short stature, an annual feature for a "big show" catcher, he is the most sought for catcher in either league. First base is about the only weak spot in the infield. Fournier has been plugging the initial sack simply because of his sticking qualities. The big Frenchman lacks the finish of a fielding first baseman, but is kept on the sack for his ability to clout out the hits and he sure is doing this to the immense satisfaction of the loyal Sox rooters.

At second Collins has proved a world of help. A few critics declare that a second base but this is not an accepted truth, for while Collins is undoubtedly the greatest infielder of today and adds a pillar of strength to the Sox, he is not the "whole works." Weaver at short is playing a wonderful game, being steered by Collins. At third Blackburne is showing the fans some of his expected ability and is batting fair. In the outfield the Sox grabbed a prize in Peisch, the Milwaukee star, for the German youth is upholding his reputation as a hitter. Leibold, now a member of the Sox from Cleveland, is declared to be a finished outfielder and will lead off the Sox batting order, showing Peisch down where the latter's healthy wallop will come in more handy. Evers, the club fought until the last ditch and won. It is the same principal that the Sox are applying and it would not be much of a surprise to see Combsy be the proud possessor of a championship nine this fall.

It is apparent that the real secret of the Sox is that the whole nine is pulling together and Manager Rowland has eliminated the "T" spirit of individuals to on of "we." The Boston Braves went through the National league because they pulled together as a unit and although there was not a great start on the nine, except Evers, the club fought until the last ditch and won. It is the same principal that the Sox are applying and it would not be much of a surprise to see Combsy be the proud possessor of a championship nine this fall.

GILMORE SAYS THIS WILL BE BAD YEAR.

And now James Gilmore, president of the Federals, steps to the standpoint of the baseball magnate's pocketbook, this is going to be about the leanest season ever. "In my opinion," says Prexy Jim, "the present baseball season will be the most disastrous ever experienced in the history of the national pastime, and while the poor attendance throughout the league has been disastrous, but the weather may stand for much of the blame, as we have now had to postpone more than 36 games since the start of the season."

Bob Unglaub, veteran though he may be, is showing the way to hitters in the Northern league, according to recent averages. He is hitting well over 400. Ollie Pickering and Denny Sullivan are other veterans who are hitting in the 300 class. President Burmeister should suppress these averages, if he expects to sell any pitchers to the big show this fall.

WEILMAN IS "JINX" TO DETROIT TIGERS

Some Pitchers Have It On One Club Not Because He Is Star, But He Has Their Number.

New York, July 9.—Hardly a baseball season passes without producing a pitcher who has a special knack for one performer against six clubs, and is a world-beater against the seventh. He simply "has it on" that club. It isn't his speed, it isn't his curves, or his control or a change of pace, or anything like that. Old baseball men don't attempt to explain it except by that one word, JINX.

This season's mysterious person is tall, lanky Carl Weilman of the St. Louis Browns, and the goat club is the Detroit Tigers. This season, and in fact, ever since he kicked his way into the big show, the lanky Weilman has beaten the Tigers consistently. A short time ago he beat them twice in the same series, and that was all that was needed to convince the Detroiters that he is their jinx.

Yet Weilman will go up against a weak hitting club like either Washington or Cleveland and they'll all look at his brains out. Cobb, Crawford, Veatch, Bush and the rest of that famed wrecking crew look like bushers against the lean Brown, while some rookie will go up and plant the ball over the fence.

Dusting off the records in the dim archives of baseball history, it is seen that there have been many jinxes. It will be remembered that for a long time the Cincinnati Reds could not beat Mathewson. Of course, there were a lot of other clubs in the same fix, but they did manage to sneak a win from the Old Master now and then, but the Reds never.

A case a little more recent is that of A. Rankin Johnson, who beat the Washington club. Walter Johnson up every time he worked against the Rankin wasn't a wonderful pitcher, he was just average, if that, and after he leaped to the Reds he had a lot of difficulty in winning games. But he had Clarke Griffith's secret.

Tom Hughes, the old Washington pitcher, cast the same sort of spell over Cleveland. When Tom was in his prime, Washington never was out of the cellar. About all the Senators were due to his prowess. He didn't look so good against other clubs, but Cleveland had no chance at all.

Eddie Summers, the old Tiger star, made the Athletics eat out of his hand during his sojourn in the American league. One day, the last good season he had, he pitched a double header and Connie Mack heaved a sigh of relief when Summers hit the tobbogan the next season.

Jim Scott of the White Sox also has some sort of charm over the Athletics, though not so marked a degree.

"STOP THIEF" PROVES CONTINUOUS COMEDY

Cohan & Harris' Delightful Farce By Carlyle Moore Produced in Motion Pictures By Geo. Kleine.

George Kleine's latest five-part comedy "Stop Thief," which appeared at Myers Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening, deals with the question of kleptomaniacs. There are two kleptomaniacs and two real crooks in "Stop Thief," and a double wedding pending. One of the kleptomaniacs is the millionaire father of the bride-to-be, and the other is one of his prospective sons-in-law. The bride is aware of her father's failing but is ignorant of the fact that her intended is so cursed, also.

Into this home on the wedding night a new maid introduces her own sweetheart, a real crook, and from that time on the audience is kept in a state of continual laughter. Weird and mysterious things happen in rapid succession. Valuable articles of all kinds disappear into the shoes or pockets of the thieves and hence, when discovery is imminent, into the pockets of the self-confessed kleptomaniacs. It requires a battalion of police to straighten out the tangle and permit the weddings to proceed.

In "Stop Thief" the original cast that made the Cohan & Harris play by Carlyle Moore so popular. Mary Ryan and Harry Messinger handle their familiar roles of the light fingered maid and her sweetheart in a most able manner.

OPERA STARS DISCOVERED WITHOUT A TEMPERAMENT.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, July 9.—Found: A classification of stars minus temperaments. Imagine a grand opera star who gets $4,000 an hour every public performance being without that well known temperament; imagine a $10,000 a year left handed pitcher without temperament; imagine a Paderecki, or a Caruso or a Mary Garden or great actor or actress without temperament; it can't be imagined. Even some of the Vernon Castles and Mrs. Vernon Castles are afflicted with it. It's part and parcel of the business of being a star to have temperament.

But the seeming impossibility has been located right here in Chicago. The stars under consideration get anywhere from $100 to $20,000 for a single public performance and they not only as a class never have temperament, but they can't afford to have it. They are automobile speed demons.

Chicago recently saw as great a galaxy of auto speed drivers as ever competed in this country, when the new Chicago Speedway was baptized with one of the greatest speed contests since Old Dobbin was chased to the bench by gasoline buggies. During the two weeks that the speed kings were fighting with death in preparation for the big race Chicago saw a great deal of the speed stars. Not one of them showed signs of temperament. They all said they hadn't time and to see the work they put in on their machines for from 8 to 10 hours daily, in order to have them fit for a comparatively short turn about the track, they didn't have.

Anyway, imagine getting an attack of temperament while going 100 miles an hour around a curve at an angle of 45 degrees.

Alma Richards is no wan A. A. U. professional because he put in an expense account of $59 for a trip to Philadelphia and return from Chicago, her hotel, hotel, etc., included. We'd like to have a jury of traveling men in that case.

DROPS "T" FOR "WE" TO MAKE SOX WIN

New photograph of Clarence Bowland.

"We've eliminated the 'T's' on this club," says Manager Clarence Rowland in explaining the success of the White Sox this season. "Everyone around this club says 'we' and no individual takes the credit for winning to himself. Lots of big league managers have 'I's' themselves out of their jobs."

WESTERN GOLF EVENT TO BE BEST EVER

According to Crafts W. Higgins, secretary of the Western Golf association, the field for the seventeenth annual championship tourney to be held July 19-24 over the Mayfield Country Club course will be the best in the history of the classic. Among the prominent contestants will be "Chick" Evans of Chicago and W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pennsylvania, former national champion.

Portland's deal with the Phillies for Dave Bancroft was anything but a profitable one, says Harry Murphy and Milton Reed, in addition to some cash. Murphy failed to deliver and was sent to the Northwestern league, where he is, however, a bearcat. Reed jumped to the Reds, but they let him go later and then Portland sent him transportation to Atlanta. He made the long trip to the coast, played in a game of games, and was turned adrift, as he showed nothing.

Harry Davis of the Athletics is a Yankee. He likes to make money. After the recent Bill Sunday uprising in Philadelphia, Harry bought the tabernacle, and sold it piecemeal to house builders. The saddest in the aisles he boxed up in cute little boxes and sold for 60 cents per box to admirers of Sunday. When the ship ran out, he got some more from a nearby sawmill, and supplied the demand. "Why let anybody suffer," said Davis, "when it's so easy to make them happy?"

That the west will hereafter be a factor in the annual intercollegiate race of many rowing men, Leland Stanford's great race this year at Poughkeepsie, they believe, will encourage not only that university, but kings were fighting with death in preparation for the big race Chicago saw a great deal of the speed stars. Not one of them showed signs of temperament. They all said they hadn't time and to see the work they put in on their machines for from 8 to 10 hours daily, in order to have them fit for a comparatively short turn about the track, they didn't have.

What looks like a record was when Manager Mack made seven changes in his team in one inning in the game of June 21. In the eighth inning Connie saw in Dave Schang, Harry Murphy and Lajoie as pinch hitters. When the ninth inning began only Lapp behind the bat and McInnis at first base remained in the same positions which they played an inning before. Lajoie was sent to second base. Oldring to shortstop, Walsh to third base, Strunk to center field, Davies to left field and Murphy to right field, while Bush went in on pitch. Such a wholesale shake-up all at once was certainly an event far beyond the ordinary.

So far Ty Cobb hasn't missed a game this year. He is keeping out of scraps when away from the ball field.

The veteran Gus Zeimer, for many years a figure in New York State league ball, is now playing in the Kansas league with Hamilton, having been secured by that team from Newport News of the Virginia league.

I played golf every Sunday, rain or shine, and as I often said to the boys, "That ball looks as big as a pumpkin." Whether golf playing the day before had anything to do with it or not, I dare not say. Being a bug on golf, my own opinion is formed.

Yale, indeed, has a right to draw a sigh of relief, several sighs, in fact, for Charles Brickley and Jack Hardwick have completed their collegiate careers at Harvard. Year after year they carried the crimson through to victories upon the gridiron and at the finish, their efforts resulted in Cambridge victories over the Bulldogs upon the diamond. Are the Ellis sorry Brickley and Hardwick are through? Sure—just as sorry as the Kaiser is that Lomberg has fallen.

Fritz, the elevator boy with the disappearing thumb, executed this one for "Say, that rowing machine's getting cheap." "How's that?" "Why, there's two Nickalls in it." And so there are.

EXPERT OPINION.

"Lucky Wilson" is the way in which the Philadelphian Ledge characterizes President Woodrow Wilson, and then it explains its statement by announcing that the war in Europe has vetoed the low tariff law.

The war in Europe has vetoed the low tariff law. It has erected a barrier as effective as protection. It has likewise flooded the country with war orders, putting many mills on full time. The result is a remarkable drop of the value of protection. A stimulant for prosperity. Business was stagnant while the Underwood tariff operated under normal conditions. The moment these conditions were changed and the war became a substitute for protection the return to prosperity began. The movement has been hastened by orders for war material, of course, but this has not been the decisive factor.

Mr. Wilson may see, therefore, a prosperity induced by the stimulation of his economic measures, a prosperity brought about in spite of his policies, not on account of them. Nevertheless, he is certain to profit from the conditions. Voters do not ask ways and wherefores. They are satisfied when they are prosperous, and dissatisfied when they are not prosperous. The war has introduced into the political situation a new factor favorable to the democrats.

It is imperative, therefore, that the republican party enter the campaign next summer united. It has a hard fight ahead of it at any event. It cannot afford to be reactionary. It must be aggressive, as it was in Lincoln's day. It must wage a campaign of education. Otherwise the electorate may be deluded into believing that prosperity occasioned by temporary conditions is permanent. Our great industries must not be dependent on the policies of other nations, but on the economic program adhered to by the United States.

NO CHANCE.

Apparently there is no chance of the plans of the governor and his immediate followers being consummated if the "Tax-eaters" continue to sway the opinions of the legislators. The carefully selected and personally conducted educational-liquor-progressive lobby that infests the very chambers of the two houses of the state legislature, are not losing any opportunities to impress themselves and their views upon the minds of the law-makers. Thus far they have been successful in many respects and the "Tax-eaters" continue to swing legislation as they see fit. There are a few newspapers in the state who have never been able to see anything good in the Philipp program and who supported Blaine of Boscobel, the renegade republican-democrat, at the last election. They continue to bolster up the lobby and their work and give them courage to continue the attack. However, it is a long lane that has no turning and the members may discover before the next election time comes that it is dangerous to monkey with the buzz-saw of public opinion to suit their own ends.

CIVIC DISCUSSION.

There is nothing that brings about better results than a free discussion of civic matters. While the people have every confidence in the judgment of the mayor and councilmen, oftentimes it is a good thing to bolster up their views by public endorsement of their acts. The example set by the filing of the petition asking for radical changes in the lighting system and the removal of the poles from the business section of the city, is an evidence that free discussion of each project is good for the general welfare of the city as a whole. The Gazette offers its columns for communications of matters of civic interest and many have availed themselves of the offer on past occasions. There are many subjects of the streets, the sidewalks, the tree trimmings, public bath houses, the waterworks, the lighting problem, the removal of the poles. In fact dozens of other matters of interest that would be good field for prolific writers, and it is to be hoped that they will take advantage of the opportunity.

Well, the ultra progressives finally succeeded in passing the administration agricultural bill with so few changes that it is really benefited rather than injured. It does away with the state board of agriculture at any rate, and that was the main object of the joint committee measure.

"I can't say for certain, madam," he replied, "but I think it is altogether likely to rain."

"It may snow sometime today. I think perhaps it will."

"What?"

"Yes, the wind will be in the east all day."

Bad Teeth Make Bad Boys

The president of the New York Juvenile association asserts that 91 per cent of the delinquent boys that come to the association to be looked after have bad teeth from which they suffer and that instead of worrying about their morals the association worries about their teeth with the result that after two years of competent dentistry and daily use of the tooth brush 90 per cent of the boys are turned out as reformed.

CHAUTAUQUA WILL BEGIN SATURDAY

OPENING PROGRAM TO BE HELD AT TWO IN THE AFTER-NOON.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

Is Arranged for the Next Six Days of the Session—Sale of Tickets Progresses.

At two-thirty on Saturday afternoon the Janesville Chautauqua will formally open its gates to the public and for the next six days most interesting programs will be given in the huge tent that is being erected this afternoon to accommodate the crowds that are expected to attend.

President Thomas S. Nolan of the Chautauqua will deliver the opening address at two-thirty, followed by a varied program by the Conservatory. This will be followed by the children's hour.

In the evening the program calls for an entertainment by Baldy Strang in Scotch songs, with the Conservatory players and a lecture by Booth Lowry that should prove most interesting.

E. W. Brehm, representing the Lincoln Chautauqua Bureau, which furnishes talent for the entertainments, has arrived in the city and will have charge of the platform work. Miss Collingson, who is in charge of the Junior Chautauqua work, is also in the city prepared to organize her children's classes.

The sale of tickets is progressing rapidly although some of the pledges have not been redeemed as yet and there are also many season tickets left for sale.

The committee in charge are making every arrangement possible for the comfort and convenience of the visitors attending the entertainments and it is expected it will be a most successful six days' session.

AUTO RACE ENTRIES DISPUTE DECISION

Considerable wrangling and a hot discussion terminated the meeting of the judges and contestants of the auto races, held here last Monday, on the outcome of the event. The outcome of the conference was to turn the prize money for second and third places over to Harry Nowlan, secretary of the board of directors of the Park Association, to await a final agreement. It was decided by the judges that Fred Herman, driving car No. 8, a Buick, from Chicago, took second, and that F. P. Bemis, driving an Oakland, from Beloit, was third. Bemis, however, disagreed with the decision of the judges and claimed that Herman was disqualified from receiving second money because he had changed drivers on account of being injured in his eyes from the first few laps, but contested the protest. No agreement was reached so it was decided to leave the prize money in the hands of Mr. Nowlan to await final settlement. Bemis declares that in case he receives second place, third money will go to William Stark, Beloit driver of a Jackson car.

SENATE ENGROSSES SUBSTITUTE BILL

Madison, July 9.—The senate today engrossed the Staudenmayer substitute to the central board of education bill providing for a board of five members to supervise the affairs of all state educational institutions, including the common schools and then sent it to the finance committee as the statute requires.

CHAPTER I.

No Place for Sentiment.

Silence pervaded the dim old aisles of the Market Square church; the winter sun, streaming through the clerestory windows, cast, on the floor and on the vacant benches, patches of ruby and sapphire, of emerald and of opal, these seeming only to accentuate the dimness and the silence.

In that silence the vestry door creaked; it opened wide, and it was as if a vision had suddenly been set there! Bathed in the golden light from the transept window, brown-haired, brown-eyed, rosy-cheeked, stood a girl who might have been one of the slender stained-glass virgins come to life, the golden light flaming the edges of her hair into an aureole. She stood timidly, peering into the dimness, and on her beautifully curved lips was a half questioning smile.

"Uncle Jim," she called, and there was some quality in her low voice which was strangely attractive, and disturbing.

"By George, Gail, I forgot that you were to come for me!" said Jim Sargent, rising from amid the group of men in the dim transept. "Well, be through in a few minutes. Allison, you were about to prove something to us, I think."

"Prove is the right word," agreed the stockily built man who had evidently been addressing the vestry. He was acutely conscious of the presence of Gail, as they all were. "Your recitor suggests that this is a matter of sentiment. You are anxious to have fifty million dollars to begin the erection of a cathedral; but I came here to talk business, and that only. Granting you the full normal appreciation of your Vedder Court property, and the normal increase of your aggregate rentals, you cannot have, at the end of ten years, a penny over forty-two millions. I am prepared to offer you, in cash, a sum which will, at three and a half per cent, and in ten years, produce that exact amount. To this I add two million."

"How much did you allow for increase in the value of the property?" asked Nicholas Van Ploom, whose only knowledge for several generations had been centered on this one question. The original Van Ploom had bought a vast tract of Manhattan for a dollar here, and, by that stroke of towering genius, had placed the family of Van Ploom, for all eternity, beyond the necessity of thought.

For answer, Allison passed him the envelope upon which he had been figuring, checking off an item as he did so. He noticed that Gail's lips twitched with suppressed mirth. She turned abruptly to look back at the striking transept window, and the three vestrymen in the rear pew immediately sat straighter. Willis Cunningham, who was a bachelor, hastily smoothed his Vandyke. He was so rich, by inheritance, that money meant nothing to him.

"Not enough," grunted Van Ploom, handing back the envelope and twisting again in the general direction of Gail.

"Ample," retorted Allison. "You can't count anything for the buildings. While I don't deny that they yield the richest income of any property in the city, they are the most decrepit monuments in New York. They'll fall down in less than ten years. You have them propped up now."

Jim Sargent glanced solicitously at Gail, but she did not seem to be bored; not a particle!

"They are passed by the building inspector annually," pompously stated W. T. Chisholm, his mutton chops turning pink from the reddening of the skin beneath. He had spent a lifetime in resenting indignities before they reached him.

"Building inspectors change," insinuated Allison. "Politics is very uncertain."

Four indignant vestrymen jerked forward to answer that insult.

"Gentlemen, this is a vestry meeting," sternly reproved the Rev. Smith Boyd, advancing a step, and seeming to feel the need of a gavel. His rich, deep barytone explained why he was pastor of the richest church in the Gail's eyes were dancing, but otherwise she was demureness itself as she studied, in turn, the members of the richest vestry in the world. She estimated that eight of the gentlemen then present were almost close enough to the anger line to swear. They numbered just eight, and they were most interesting! And this was a vestry meeting!

"The topic of debate was money, I believe," suggested Rufus Manning, rescuing his sense of humor from somewhere in his beard. He was the infidel member. "Suppose we return to it. Is Allison's offer worth considering?"

"Why?" inquired the nasal voice of clean-shaven old Joseph G. Cook, who was sarcastic in money matters. The Standard Cereal company had attained its colossal dimensions through rebates; and he had invented the device! "The only reason we'd sell to Allison would be that we could get more money than by the normal return from our investment."

"I've allowed two million for the profit of Market Square church in dealing with me," stated Allison, again proffering the envelope which no one made a move to take. "I will not pay a dollar more."

W. T. Chisholm was suddenly reminded that the vestry had a moral obligation in the matter under discussion. He was president of the Majestic Trust company, and never forgot that fact.

"To what use would you devote the property of Market Square church?" he gravely asked.

"The erection of a terminal station for all the municipal transportation in New York," answered Allison; "subways, elevateds, surface cars, traction lines! The proposition should have the hearty co-operation of every citizen."

Simple little idea, wasn't it? Gail had to think successfully to comprehend what a stupendous enterprise this was; and the man talked about it as modestly as if he were planning to sod a lawn; more so! Why, back home, if a man dreamed a dream so vast as that, he just talked about it for the rest of his life; and they put a poet's wreath on his tombstone.

"Now you're talking sentiment," retorted stubby-mustached Jim Sargent. "You said, a while ago, that you came here strictly on business. So did we. This is no place for sentiment."

Rufus Manning, with the tip of his silvery beard in his fingers, looked up into the delicate gloaming of the apse, where it curved gracefully forward over the head of the famous Henri Dupre's crucifix, and he grinned. Gail Sargent was looking contemptuously from one to the other of the grave vestrymen.

"You're right," conceded Allison curtly. "Suppose you fellows talk it over by yourselves, and let me know your best offer."

"Very well," assented Jim Sargent, with an indifference which did not seem to be assumed. "We have some other matters to discuss, and we may as well thrash this thing out right now. We'll let you know tomorrow."

Gail looked at her watch and rose energetically.

"I shall be late at Lucile's, Uncle Jim. I don't think I can wait for you."

"I'll be very happy to take Miss Sargent anywhere she'd like to go," offered Allison, almost instantaneously.

"Much obliged," accepted Sargent heartily; "that is, if she'll go with you."

"Thank you," said Gail simply, as she stepped out of the pew.

The gentlemen of the vestry rose as one man. Old Nicholas Van Ploom even attempted to stand gracefully on one leg, while his vest bulged over the back of the pew in front of him.

"I think we'll have to make you a permanent member of the vestry," smiled Manning, the patriarch, as he bowed his adieux. "We've been needing a brightening influence for some time."

Willis Cunningham, the thoughtful one, wedged his Vandyke between the heads of Standard Cereal Clark and Banker Chisholm.

"We hope to see you often. Miss

Sargent," was his thoughtful remark. "I mean to attend services," returned Gail graciously, looking up into the organ loft, where the organist was making his third attempt at that baffling run in the Bach prelude.

"You haven't said how you like our famous old church," suggested the Rev. Smith Boyd with pleasant ease, though he felt relieved that she was going.

The sudden snap in Gail's eyes fairly scintillated. It was like the shattering of blue glass in the sunlight. "It seems to be a remarkably lucrative enterprise," she smiled up at him, and was rewarded by a snort from Manning. Allison frankly guffawed. The balance of the sedate vestry was struck dumb by the impertinence.

Gail felt the eyes of the Rev. Smith Boyd fixed steadily on her, and turned to meet them. They were cold. She had thought them blue; but now they were green! She stared back into them for a moment, and a little red spot came into the delicate tint of her oval cheeks; then she turned deliberately to the marvelously beautiful big transept window. It had been designed by the most famous stained-glass artist in the world, and its subject lent itself to a wealth of color. It was Christ turning the money changers out of the temple!

CHAPTER II.

"Why?"

"Snow!" exclaimed Gail in delight, turning up her face to the delicate flakes. "And the sun shining. That means snow tomorrow!"

Allison helped her into his big, practical-looking runabout, and tucked her in as if she were some fragile hot-house plant which might freeze with the first cool draft.

"The pretty white snow is no friend of mine," he assured her, as he took the wheel and headed toward the avenue. He looked calculatingly into the sky. "This particular downfall is likely to coat the Municipal Transportation company several thousand dollars."

"I'm curious to know the commercial value of a sunset in New York," Gail smiled up at him. Allison had the impression that under the cover of her exquisitely veiled lids she was looking at him cornerwise, and having a great deal of fun all by herself.

"We haven't capitalized sunsets yet, but we have hopes," he laughed.

"Then there's still a commercial opportunity," she lightly returned. "I feel quite friendly to money, but it's so intimate here. I've heard nothing else since I came, on Monday."

"Even in church," he chuckled. "You delivered a reckless shock to Rev. Smith Boyd's vestry."

"Well?" she demanded. "Didn't he ask my opinion?"

"I don't think he'll make the mistake again," and Allison took the corner into the avenue at a speed which made Gail, unused to bare inches of eaway, class Allison as a demon driver. The tall traffic policeman around whose upraised arm they had circled smiled a frank tribute to her beauty, and she felt relieved. She had cherished some feeling that they should be arrested.

"However, even a church must discuss money," went on Allison, as if he had just decided a problem to which he had given weighty thought. "Fifty millions isn't mere money," retorted Gail; "it's criminal wealth. If you can make a million dollars honestly, how can a church?"

Some few there were who took exceptions to Editor Randolph's editorial in the same issue, commenting on the surrender, and pleading for a suspension of judgment on the ground that much might still be hoped for from a man who had retraced a broad step in the downward path by voluntarily accepting the penalty. Those who objected to the editorial were of the perverse minority. The intimation was made that the plea had been inspired—a hint basing itself upon the fact that Miss Grierson had been seen visiting there were interruptions. "I knew you'd be here; no, they didn't tell me, but I knew it—I would have staked my life on it, Margery, girl," he said, in the first lucid interval.

"And you—you've paid the Price, haven't you, Kenneth? But, oh, boy, dear! I've paid it, too! Don't you believe me?"

There was another interruption, and because the carriage windows were open, the negro driver grinned and confided a remark to his horses. Then the transgressor began again.

"Where are you taking me, Margery?—not that it makes any manner of difference."

"We are going by train to New Orleans, and this—this—very—evening we are to be married, in Mr. Galbraith's house. And Uncle Andrew is going to give the bride away. It's all arranged."

"And after?"

"Afterward, we are going away—I don't know where. I just told dear old Saint Andrew to buy the tickets to anywhere he thought would be nice, and we'd go. I don't care where it is—do you? And when we get there, I'll buy you a pen and some ink and paper, and you'll go on writing the book, just as if nothing had happened. Say you will, boy, dear; please say you will! And then I'll know that—the price—wasn't—too great."

He was looking out of the carriage window when he answered her, across to the levee and beyond it to the farther shore of the great river, and his eyes were the eyes of a man who has seen of the travail of his soul and is satisfied.

"I shall never write that book, little girl. That story, and all the mistakes that were going to the making of it, lie on the other side of the Price. But one day, please God, there shall be another and a worthier one."

"Yes—please God," she said; and the dark eyes were shining softly.

The sensational incident, however, had been forgotten long before a certain evening, three weeks later, when the Grierson carriage conveyed the convalescent president of the Bayou State Security from the Grierson mansion to the south-bound train. Andrew Galbraith was not alone in the carriage, and possibly there were those in the sleeping car who mistook the dark-eyed and strikingly beautiful young woman, who took leave of him only after he was comfortably settled in his section, for his daughter. But the whispered words of leave-taking were rather those of a confidante than a kinswoman.

"I'll arrange the Raymer matter as you suggest," she said, "and if I had even a speaking acquaintance with God, I'd pray for you the longest day I live, Uncle Andrew. And about the trial: I'm going to leave it all with you! Just remember that I shall bleed little drops of blood for every day the judge gives him, and that the only way he can be helped is by a short sentence. He wouldn't take a pardon; he—he wants to pay, you know. Good-night, and good-by!" And she put her strong young arms around Andrew Galbraith's neck and kissed him, thereby convincing the family party in lower seven that she was not only the only man's daughter, but a very affectionate one, at that.

The little-changing seasons of central Louisiana had measured two complete rounds on the yearly dial of time's unrelenting and unobscured clock when the best hired carriage that Baton Rouge could afford drew up before the entrance to the state's prison and waited. Precisely on the stroke of twelve, a man for whom the prison rules had lately been relaxed sufficiently to allow his hair to grow, came out, looked about him as one dazed, and assaulted the closed door of the carriage as if he meant to tear it from its hinges.

"Oh, boy, boy!" came from the one who had waited; and then the carriage door yielded, opened, closed with a crash, and the negro driver clucked to his horses.

They were half-way to the railroad station, and she was trying to persuade him that there would be months and years in which to make up for the loveless blank, before sane speech found its opportunity. And even then Impatiently the train official waited for the passenger to embark, and then, fuming with annoyance, he ran alongside the train.

"Urry up, mum!" he implored of the very stout lady struggling to enter a narrow carriage door. "Train's late now. Get in edgeways, missus, get in edgeways!"

Perspiring, furred and worried, she of the large bulk paused in her endeavors and glared backwards with indignation.

"Not if I ain't got no edge?" she snapped.

The headie, as the church officer is called in the kirk in Scotland, is sometimes a caustic critic. A preacher of a trial sermon was thanked at the close, but the elders uttered neither praise nor blame. Later the preacher began gently sounding the headie, but he also showed a strange reticence. The text had been, "I Am the Light of the World." As the headie showed him out there came this parting shot: "Young man, your candle needs snuffin'!"

Not Far From the Kingdom

By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE
Assistant Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—Thou art not far from the kingdom of God.—Mark 12:34.

I required courage to ask the question which drew from the Master the words of the text.

Surrounded by the Pharisees with their cold formalism, and the Sadducees with their skepticism, to say nothing of the publicans and sinners with all their vices, this young man had the moral bravery to step out before them all and exhibit a keen desire to know and do the right. He came to Jesus with a question concerning God's first and great commandment for man, and the Master's answer places him at once in his true position before the Lord. What Jesus told this young man of long ago can still be said of many today: "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

1. He was in a very promising position, "not far from the kingdom."

He was acquainted with the truth to a certain extent, being in the position of many today who are able to tell much about the truth of the Bible; but they themselves are still "without."

He also assented to the truth.

This, too, describes many of today who make no profession of Christianity; not only know much of the truth, but they are quite ready to agree that it is truth.

He also admired the One who told him the truth; he came to Jesus.

And it may safely be presumed that he attempted to live his creed. He was a sincere man who caught the attention of Jesus and drew from him this word, "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." A great truth is here, viz., that one can be at the very door of the kingdom and yet be finally lost. Some who read these words may be in the same position, at the threshold—but yet not in.

2. He was in a very painful position; just at the door, but not inside.

He would be condemned by his conscience because of his acquaintance with the truth. It would ever be telling him that he ought to step inside and delay no longer. An unheeded conscience is not pleasant to live with, and this young man's position would be painful in spite of its promise.

He would also be condemned by his reason because of his assent to the truth. To know that a certain action is wise and yet not do it, is to dishonor one's reason. Yet many there are today who have been brought to the gates of salvation but who have stifled the voices of conscience and reason and found themselves in the distressing position of this young man.

He would be condemned by the words which Jesus addressed to him when he said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart."

3. He was in a very perilous position; he might never get into that kingdom from which he was then "not far."

There was the danger that he rest content with mere assent to the truth. He would be like a traveler who might go many days and stop just one day's march from his goal; all his weary journey would be useless without the final day's work. To be within a step of the kingdom of God and neglect to take that last step which would put him over the threshold is to take one's place with all the unsaved.

There was the danger, too, that he should put off the final step too long and his conscience become hardened and leave him without its warning tones.

"Almost" cannot avail, "almost" is but to fall. Sad, sad, the bitter wall, "Almost, but not."

A distinguished preacher tells of a gentleman who heard someone preach from this text, and as the danger of neglect was presented he felt he was but a step from salvation. Instead, however, of taking that last step which separated between his soul and life, he put it off and returned to his home. Retiring, he fell into a restless sleep and began to dream. He thought he saw himself die and beheld his soul leaving his body. But he was dismayed to see a host of sins, which he recognized as his own, pursue his soul, and it became so terrible he could bear it no longer, but awoke. Springing from his bed he called his wife and telling her the dream declared that on the next Sunday he would go to the church and take the last step toward salvation. But as he spoke he gasped and fell at his wife's feet, dead. My dear reader, if you find yourself in the promising but perilous position of this young man, will you not just now exchange that perilous place for the safe place by accepting the gracious invitation of Jesus, "Come unto me and I will give you rest?"

SOLOMON ANNOINTED KING.

(THE STORY)

The unquenchable spirit of David flamed up even upon his deathbed. He was still equal to his duty. By one swift move he conserved his life when it was in jeopardy. His characteristic traits stand in clear relief against the somber hour of death. David's eldest living son, was about to seize the purple before his father should breathe his last. If the law of right on his side, he may even have persuaded himself, if he gave any thought to it, that it would be a public misfortune for a mere boy like Solomon to attempt to reign. Joab the lieutenant-general, and Abiathar the high-priest, shared with him in the opinion: "So Hagith, the dancing woman's son, inheriting his mother's frivolous vanity, caring nothing for his dying father's expressed wish, which was also the well-known will of God, rides out to his coronation. It makes a brave show—that chariot of David's, with its richly appointed harness, the ivory-towered chariot, handsome and graceful—manned by the table-rock of Zolothet. Fifteen princes of the realm sit in the chariot, their elder brother, Dignity is added by the presence of chief representatives of church and army. Already the cry is raised, 'God save king Adonijah!' But there are parties conspicuous for their absence from that regal affair. Nathan, Zadok, Benaiah, prophet, priest, and commander—where are they? Solomon—where is he?—is ready to rise and take that which wears the crown, even in the dying hour. This matter must be brought to the attention of David, though at that very moment he is steering for the goal of his life. He vainly do Nathan and Benaiah make their appeal. David renews his oath, and plans for its performance. He orders an instantaneous counter-demonstration at Gihon, and sends messengers against the slippery ledge of Zolothet. "Solomon, seated on the king's own beast, to ride which, without his permission, would be a capital offense, is accompanied by Zadok, bearing the olive oil from the Tabernacle; and Nathan, the prophet; and Benaiah, the captain-general; and all the royal body, and the splendid cavalcade halts at the edge of the brimming fountain. The priest pours the oil upon Solomon's bowed head. There is a ringing cry upon the trumpets, and the king shouts, 'God Save King Solomon!'"

That fateful sound blanches the faces of Adonijah and his guests. Joab springs to his feet, crying, "What does the city mean by this?" At the same instant a courier enters with full particulars of the event which has just transpired. Royal festivity is at an end. The banqueters take to flight, and to Jerusalem to pay their servile homage to the new king that sits upon the golden throne of his father David.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

The ease and quiet with which sovereign power changes hands in our day marks the advance of civilization. The ruler of ten times as many people as David ever reigned over gives place to his successor on the fourth of March every fourth year, and retires to private life, surrendering forever his powers and emoluments. Public peace, prosperity, and happiness are conserved thereby.

David himself, the horns that pierced the dying pillows, if he had been the husband of one wife, and had exercised parental authority over his children, there would have been no dissension, no Polygamy, and no indulgence of his children was his bane. It is very significantly said of Adonijah "that his father had not displeased him at any time in saying, 'Why hast thou done so?'"

"And his mother bore him after Absalom" is a parenthetical statement that might easily be overlooked. It means a great deal. After Absalom, in spite of the lurid danger of his shameful and disastrous career, yet Adonijah put his feet in Absalom's footsteps. Fools will be fools. They will not be wiser than profane Adonijah did not go quite the length of Absalom. He did not seek his father's life. He seemed to intend to force only a co-regency. He proved a despicable coward. He saved his cur at Solomon's feet, and finally lost his worthless life in trying to climb to the throne through his father's seraglio.

From time immemorial the installing of a new chief magistrate has been characterized by an appeal to the deity for the protection of his person and the prosperity of his administration. This is in the highest degree appropriate. The ruler, whatever be his title, is in a sense the collective life of the people. His success is their welfare, his failure their distress and loss. Prayer for him is to all intents and purposes prayer for the people ruled.

The ideal chief is one who subordinates personal interests to those of his citizens, who considers respect and honor shown to himself as proof of the state of his individual, but to the people of whom he is only first citizen.

Some degree of ceremony on so important a state occasion as the change of government is to be expected. The event should be made impressive. For a president-elect to ride horseback and unattended to the capital and hitch his horse to a fence, or for a governor-elect to the state building in business suit and id slovenly hat, is to discount the dignity of office and to magnify the importance of the incumbent.

MAKING LIFE WORTH WHILE

In the "madness crowd" the Gallilean still stands, crying, "Hail!"

"Desist from mammon! Take ye anxious thought! Make an end of solicitude! Do not ask what eat, what drink, how clothed ye shall be. For Gentiles seek these things so desperately because they have forgotten that God is a Father and so think they must. One who recognizes his Fatherhood of God may have a steady increase of industry and prudence. Your heavenly Father knoweth what things ye have need of. Remember, too, it is the homeless One who says, 'This I was more destitute than fox or bird, yet his faith in his Father gave him the sense of absolute security; and that faith was never eclipsed."

BAVARIAN TRENCHES

ARE CLAIMED MODEL FOR DEFENSE WORK

Wonders of Trenches of German Regiment Described by Associated Press War Correspondent.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Northern France, July 9.—With no little display of pride in the accomplishment of his boys, the colonel of a Bavarian regiment recently made the rounds of some five kilometers of trenches in this region with an Associated Press correspondent. He was intent on showing the trench, first, that life at the front is not without its compensations, and second, that Germany's opponents may expect to have a difficult time in driving them out of their comfortable quarters.

It is certain that the trenches which he exhibited have not their equal in the world. Every fighting front of home that is available for a trench has been supplied from shavings, mirrors, four bed posts. These trenches may in winter time have been the mires of mud and water that have been described, but it seems hard to believe when one sees the drains at regular intervals, and the numerous sanitary arrangements that have been installed.

Almost a mile back of the real fighting line the trench is a "laager" or connected trench—a narrow winding slit in the ground almost seven feet deep and perhaps three feet wide. The soil in that part of France is so soft that the deep excavations had been made with difficulty but which never caves in. The walls were as smooth as planed pine board.

At intervals along the route little sentry boxes, called "pillboxes," enable one to climb up and get a view of the whole landscape, including the French trenches hundreds of yards away. Little lines of brown color, the sentry boxes, are visible from the whole gigantic field was rutted and cut by trenches that later appeared to be interminable.

After a walk of fifteen or twenty miles the sentry boxes, those at the very front, were reached, and one began to see at one and the same time real warfare and the comforts of home combined. Just to make the contrast striking, the crackling noise of rifle fire was broken by the strains of a harmonica.

Music and Gunfire.

The fighting trenches differ from the connecting runway only in that they are wider, and are reinforced in front with bags of sand or plates of steel through openings in which the sentry boxes can be fired without being seen.

Built into the clay walls were little wooden compartments filled with bullets, and alongside of the bullets were little ingenious devices. These flower pots filled with spring blossoms. These flowers, together with a quantity of other decorations, were a feature of almost every yard of the trenches.

To the rear of the trenches, far underground, and sometimes under the front walls, are the so-called "underground" or shelters, where the soldiers live when not on duty. The approach to these in the rear is usually by a connecting trench varying from ten to thirty yards in length, and almost invariably decorated with flowers.

The interiors are, under the circumstances, surprisingly comfortable. Those of the non-commissioned officers and division leaders are fitted up for the most part with big four poster beds. Many have clocks and carpets on the floors, and nearly all have a crucifix or little altar at which the "Bavarians" conduct their devotions.

Ingeniously arranged bells have been installed in each of these shelters so that the officer can be summoned instantly in case of attack without the necessity of going clear down into his little house. Similar "bells"—often nothing but a piece of iron with a nail for a clapper—are placed everywhere in the trenches for warning or summoning the soldiers not on duty.

Names Given.

The shelters in cases have been given fantastic and familiar names—Villa Muenchener Kindl, Villa Astoria and the like. Every trench in addition has the name of a soldier, usually that of some general or popular commander. The runways leading to the officers' shelters in many instances are called after the men themselves.

At intervals along the front line of trenches are steel-sheltered openings where machine guns can be set up. The sentry boxes, however, in wooden cases built into the clay so as to protect them from dampness, and are only brought out when the enemy is attacking.

RAIN ON WEDNESDAY HELPS CORN CROPS

Shower Should Encourage Growers in Contests—A. B. West Gives More
Advice to Contestants.

Wednesday brought a fine rain which should be a great encouragement to the young corn growers, especially since the warm weather has given the corn a start. The corn is still backward, however, and as the weather favorable for growing corn is also favorable to the growth of weeds, it will be necessary for the acre corn contest boys to use their utmost efforts to bring the crop to a successful harvest.

As soon as possible after this rain the ground should be gently stirred for about two inches in depth. Below this the corn roots are spreading out in all directions between the rows, gathering not only moisture, but food necessary for the growth of the plant and the formation of the grain. If any of these roots are exposed, the plant is deprived of just so much food as that root was designed to gather, so much care must be used not to go too deeply.

But every weed must be taken out so that all the moisture and all the food in the soil may be left for the corn plant. Few farmers realize the great loss entailed by the weeds, or how great a tax they lay upon the farmer. If the individual farmer was obliged to pay as taxes in cash the amount lost to him by the weeds, he would find it a great burden, yet he allows these green robbers to deprive of living on his land and propagating their kind.

FACES SHORTAGE IN BLUE BOOK SUPPLY

How 37,000 Copies Will Fill
Demand for 45,000.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 9.—Supt. M. F. Elumenfeld has a mathematical problem which he declares neither arithmetic, geometry nor the logarithmic tables seem to give him any help in solving. It is all over the new edition of the state blue book which is now being printed. The law provides that every member of the legislature shall receive 250 copies, every employee of the state one copy, 5,000 shall go to the public schools, and copies shall be given to circuit and district courts, the number remaining to be sold to the public at 75 cents per copy. The same law provides that the number to be printed shall not exceed 45,000 copies. The 133 members of the legislature require 33,250 copies, which with the 5,000 for the public schools leaves a deficit of nearly 5,000 copies. The announcement in the papers that the blue books will be sold has resulted in hundreds of orders being received, and these must be filled first. How to make both ends meet is a problem causing much wakefulness for the superintendent of public property.

Belgian Forts Justify Existence

Delayed German Forces Five Priceless Days.

When the German bugles sounded and the whole nation rushed to the colors, Paris seemed but a few days' march away. Here after swiftly striking this war, which was conceived and equipped fighting machine planned a sudden turn against the slow-forming Russian army.

Herein the observation that "the best-laid plans of mice and men often go awry" is apropos, inasmuch as Germany had reckoned without the Belgian nations which guarded the gates to the west—the gates that Germany had first to pass are Paris could become a logical destination for the people whose independence is even mentioned as far back as in ancient Roman literature, says a passage in the mightiest fighting machine the world has ever known, but crumbled to dust in the gallant effort after five days of incessant hammering and fell invincible siege guns of the Germans.

These five priceless days, however, gave the French time to mobilize their forces and even permitted the English forces to reach the scene of action from their island home. Reinforced by the soldiers of England and France, Belgium debated every foot of the ground, until the masses of onrushing allies were assembled, a living wall between the German and that priceless prize, the city of Paris, not a day too soon.

Meantime the slow-forming Russian army was gathering thousands of miles to the north and east, and creeping southward on the most deliberate railway system on the continent, to engage the Austrians and the Germans in the rear and menace their richest cities.

The forts at Liege, lost Germany the city of Paris and its attending successes. They cost Germany the finest of her troops, and though they lay in crumbling ruins, military students acclaim them worth all they cost to the cause of the allies.

Such clear, concise information about this great war, devoid of all speculation, doubt or guesswork, is contained only in Willis J. Abbott's latest book, "The Nations at War," which describes in detail the causes, the progress and the objects of this greatest struggle in history. This wonderful volume can be had upon application to the Gazette, which arranged for a large portion of the first edition of this work and its readers, who can secure it for their own copies and the small sum of 98 cents to cover book rights and handling fees.

FEWER EMIGRANTS FROM IRELAND SINCE WAR OPENED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Dublin, July 9.—There were fewer emigrants from Ireland last year than in any twenty years since the returns were first collected in 1857. The total for 1914 was 20,314, of whom 10,860 were males.

The largest number of emigrants during one year was in 1852, when 130,000 persons left the country.

PLAN OF SMALL DAIRY BARN

One Advantage of Building Shown
Here with is Twelve-Foot Driveway Across North End.

I have a barn built last year which is as handy as any I have seen. It stands north and south, the main building 38 by 52 feet, with a lean-to on the west 18 feet wide. Beginning at the south end of the main building is a six-foot feed room 32 feet long. On each side of this room are three nine-foot stalls and one five-foot stall. Crossways of the barn from east to west is a 12-foot driveway with a door high enough that I can drive in with a load of hay, writes J. H. King in Missouri Valley Farmer. I unload with hay slings and rope from inside, which I find much more handy than unloading from the outside.

North of the driveway, at the east corner is an eight-foot storeroom. Then come 20 feet for bins. The remaining ten feet is added to an 8 by 16-foot lean-to which I am now rigging up for well, gasoline engine, corn grinder, fanning mill, grindstone, cream separator, and as many more tools as I can put in and run with the engine. Overhead I will put an 80-barrel water supply tank, and will pipe water from there to bogs, house, milkhouse, fishpond and horse tanks.

Beginning at the south end of the lean-to, next to main building, is a four-foot feed room. At the side of this are five double stalls for cows, equally dividing 32 feet of space. The main building is 17 feet high to the sheeting, which gives plenty of room for hay.

COST OF PASTEURIZING MILK

About One-Third Cent Per Gallon Is
Price Set by Government as Result of Tests.

From tests made and reported by the government, the cost of pasteurizing milk when a properly designed or properly operated plant is available, is about one-third cent a gallon. To pasteurize cream costs about two-thirds cent a gallon. Government tests show that the flash process by which milk is raised to a temperature of 185 degrees and kept there for a moment only, is more expensive than the "holder" process, in which milk is maintained for 30 minutes at a temperature of 135 to 145 degrees. Less heat is required for the holder process, and it is believed that for hygienic purposes the latter is preferred.

It is believed that many milk plants and creameries which do not make use of the latent heat in the exhaust steam from their engines and steam-driven auxiliaries would have heat sufficient in many cases for all the pasteurizing done in the plants if it were properly utilized instead of being permitted to go to waste.

Experiment With Alfalfa

An experiment of the Illinois station showed that for dairy cows a ration containing ten pounds of alfalfa produced 17 per cent more milk than the same ration of timothy used in lieu of alfalfa. Also that alfalfa was worth $10.36 more per ton than timothy and when timothy is worth $10 per ton, an acre of alfalfa is worth $14.44 more than an acre of timothy under the conditions in which the experiment was conducted and when milk is sold at $1.80 per 100 pounds.

Dry Quarters for Calf

The calf's quarters should not be allowed to accumulate a lot of damp, dirty materials, as this is almost sure to cause sickness and bad results. The bedding should be abundant and changed often. In order that the pens or stalls be kept clean they should be in the choicest part of the barn, where sunshine and light are abundant. In summer they should have access to a pasture where there is plenty of shade.

Cause of Stringy Milk

It has been proven thatropy or stringy milk can be carried from one place to another by milk utensils not being thoroughly cleaned and sterilized, and in this case the only remedy is a more thorough and careful cleaning.

PREPARE DRUM FOR
CHEESE WEIGHING A

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Sheboygan, Wis., July 9.—The Jas. Malmann Cheese company has built a galvanized drum for the manufacture of a cheese weighing a ton and a half. This drum is fourteen feet in diameter and four feet high. About 30,000 pounds, or 15,000 quarts of milk, will be required for this one cheese. The company represents the day's product of 1,000 cows. The big cheese will be made for one of the largest grocery stores in the east and is intended for special Thanksgiving trade.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question—What may be done to prevent potato blight?

Answer—Potato blight, such as is more or less common in Wisconsin, is caused by a fungus plant, Alternaria Salani. This plant is propagated by means of spores or "seed" which light upon the leaf germinating there and destroying the leaf cells. These spores are microscopic, but the results are seen in black spots upon the leaves, which are destroyed to such an extent that the entire crop is injured. These spores, like other seeds or plants, develop best under certain weather conditions favorable to their development, which fact has led farmers to think the weather responsible, which is not true. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture, properly done, will prevent the development of these tiny spores, the copper in the Bordeaux acting as a poison upon the fungus plant.

The spraying should be done before the blight appears. The first application should be made when the plants are about six inches high. Usually, at about six inches high. Usually, at least, three applications are necessary to get the best results and in some cases as high as four applications are advisable. At this time of year it is well to combine the Bordeaux mixture spray with that used for the potato beetle in one operation. The spray for blight should be used at intervals of ten days to two weeks, using the poison with it when necessary. If the leaves are kept coated with Bordeaux, the blight cannot get a start.

Question—What can I do for ants in the lawn? Mine is badly infested. Answer—The surest remedy is to fumigate their nests with carbon bisulphide. The method of procedure is as follows: With a sharpened stick, such as a broom handle, pointed at one end, make holes in the nests, two or three feet apart, according to the size of the nest, and the character of the soil, heavy clay soil requiring holes closer than more porous soil. Into each hole pour a tablespoonful or more of the carbon bisulphide and close the holes with earth. A wet blanket may be thrown over the hill to prevent the escape of gas.

Caution—The carbon bisulphide generates a gas that is explosive and dangerous to breathe so care should be used in handling it.

Question—My young cucumber plants are suffering from the attacks of striped bugs. What can I do to prevent their killing the vines? Answer—In making the rounds of gardens, visiting the gardens of the school children, the writer found various remedies used by practical gardeners for the common garden pests, some of them effective and some not. The new remedy for cucumber bugs is moth balls cut up and placed on the ground about the plants. Those who have tried it report good success. The writer for many years has used frames about six inches high and 12 inches square on the outside, covered on top with wire mosquito netting or cheese cloth. These frames are put over the hills as soon as the plants appear and kept there until the plants fill the frames, after which the bugs will not damage them. The boxes once made, may be stored for use during successive seasons.

Question—I have a piece of ground now in pasture that I am planning to put into alfalfa this year. What time would you recommend sowing it and what preparation shall I make?

Answer—It is a somewhat doubtful procedure to attempt to sow alfalfa, but it may perhaps be done if there are not too many weeds. It is, however, scarcely to be advised. The alfalfa should be sown not later than August 15, in order for it to attain sufficient growth to withstand the winter. Between now and Aug. 15 is hardly time enough to put the land into shape. The following from the bulletin on Alfalfa Management in Iowa, Bulletin No. 137, from the Iowa Agricultural Experiment station, is to the point there.

"The necessity of thoroughness in this preparation cannot be over emphasized. Unless the land is prepared early in the summer and then a good mulch maintained, there will be great danger of a lack of moisture to all the time of sowing, which as above stated, should not be later than Aug. 15. Unless alfalfa or sweet clover grows well in the immediate vicinity, the ground should be inoculated as well as limed.

As previously stated in these columns, inoculating material may be obtained free from the government by filling out an application blank which may be obtained from the writer. Or the land may be inoculated by sowing on it soil from the road side where sweet clover grows. The seed bed should be in fine condition when the seed is sown at the rate of twenty pounds of seed per acre. The best success is secured on the average by plowing in the fall and summer following. While this method costs more labor than other methods, it is also true that often the yield the following year is considerably greater.

WOLF BOUNTY FRAUD IS BARED UP STATE

Professional Wolf Hunter Held for Trial and Three Town Chairmen Ordered Arrested.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., July 9.—Assistant Attorney General J. E. Messerschmidt has returned from Balsam Lake, Polk county, where he assisted in procuring a complaint against Will Whitt, professional wolf hunter, charged with having violated the bounty laws and having obtained bounty fraudulently. The accused was bound over to the circuit court and the magistrate ordered the arrest of three town chairmen who, the testimony disclosed, appeared to be parties to some of the frauds and had failed to perform their duties as prescribed by the bounty laws. This case is the culmination in a long series of efforts and investigations by Assistant Secretary of State L. B. Nagler, who began an active campaign against fraudulent bounty claims shortly after entering the state department eight years ago.

The present case was the direct result of evidence furnished by W. J. Leader, county clerk of Douglas county, who sent to the state department a complaint of scalps which had been presented to him by Will Whitt and which, according to Mr. Nagler and Prof. George Wagner of the state university, bore evidence of having been imported. The final evidence was gathered by Albert Lee, deputy game warden of Luck, Polk county, who acted upon instructions from the secretary of state's office with the consent and cooperation of State Game Warden John A. Shotts. Mr. Lee promptly gathered evidence showing that the extent of the frauds was much greater than was at first supposed.

Whitt was arrested, charged with a misdemeanor, and the hearing was held before Court Commissioner Henry Vold of Balsam Lake. The case attracted a good deal of attention, being the first in what Mr. Nagler promises will be a series of prosecutions for bounty frauds. He has contended for a long time that all bounty laws should be repealed, that they always lead to fraud. More than $500,000 has been paid in bounties in Wisconsin during the last twelve years, only one-half of which Mr. Nagler believes was paid on fraudulent or erroneous claims.

MAY EXTEND CLOSED SEASON ON BLACK BASS IN WISCONSIN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., July 9.—The cold and late spring has may result in an extension of the closed season on black bass in Wisconsin. James Nevin, state fish commissioner, predicted today that this would be a bad year for the spawning of that fish because of the unfavorable weather conditions.

"Temperature is the deciding factor in the production of bass," said Nevin. "The female may deposit the eggs on their nests under the most favorable conditions, but if the water is not warm enough the summer of young fish will be very small. What bass need in Wisconsin is protection during the spawning season, and as that depends on a late or early spring, the closed season should have a sufficient range to cover an average year. I think that bass fishing should not be allowed earlier than July 1, and under no circumstances earlier than June 20."

It is probable that an effort will be made to obtain legislation along this line.

WILL START WORK SOON ON MILWAUKEE'S BIG HARBOR PROJECT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., July 9.—Work is expected to be started soon on Milwaukee's greater harbor project. The harbor commission is now awaiting approval of the final plans by the government before beginning dredging operations.

At the last meeting of the common council, City Engineer Staal submitted his report on the "once island survey in connection with condemnation proceedings. The work required a year. This site will be transformed into a great docking and shipping point.

The deed and abstract of the property by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad toward the Menomonee river improvement was presented at the same meeting. It was planned to complete this improvement last spring, but a tax complication held up the deed and abstract until this week. If it can be accomplished without discouraging shipping, work will be undertaken this fall. Otherwise it will be done in the spring. The corner to be removed has been the cause of several river blockades this season. The harbor commission is now in conference with officials of the Illinois Steel company relative to Manickie bay and property east of it, which will be needed for the greater harbor as planned.

REWARDS ARE OFFERED FOR SKETCHES FROM PEOPLE OF COLONIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Berlin, July 9.—For the rounding out of a sort of auxiliary history of the war regarding the German colonies, residents of the empire's territorial possessions have been asked to submit short sketches of their experience since last August. The papers must be between 800 and 1600 words in length.

To induce a large number of such sketches, the organization planning the history has offered several prizes—a first of 150 marks, a second of 100 marks, a third of 75 marks and four fourths of 50 marks—for the best that are submitted.

The articles are to touch on the life of the colonists, the officials, the troops and of the native born. Those of artistic bent are asked to send accompanying sketches or to turn in pictorial rather than written descriptions of colonial life.

OPEN AIR HOSPITAL EXPERIMENT AT CAMBRIDGE PROVES MOST SUCCESSFUL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Cambridge, England, July 9.—Cambridge is the home of the most successful hospital experiment that has been attempted in England since the beginning of the war. The First Eastern General Hospital, built early last fall, was an attempt to enlist the largest possible amount of fresh air and sunshine into the treatment of invalided soldiers. The wards are without a wall on the south frontage, being wide open to wind and sun.

After six months' experience, the managers of the hospital declare an unqualified success. Eleven thousand English and Belgian patients have been received from the front and from military camps in England, with only eighty-five deaths—an average of seven-tenths of one per cent. This is regarded as a remarkable record in view of the considerable proportion of septic wounds, tetanus, pneumonia, typhoid, and spotted fever among the patients.

You can own your own home easily by reading and acting on the offers contained in Gazette Want Ads. Do it now.

BANKERS, JOURNALISTS AND HOUSEWIVES AT SUMMER SCHOOL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Berkeley, Cal., July 9.—Housewives, teachers, engineers, bankers, journalists, farmers and artists are among the three thousand students who today attended summer school classes at the University of California.

Most of the summer session "rah-rah" are of mature years—persons who desire to gain a little more knowledge about professions in which they are already engaged. Scientific sweeping, sanitary dishwashing, expert cooking and systematic home management is being taught many wives and mothers.

Social workers are studying vocational guidance and industrial hygiene and methods for dealing with the weak minded, farmers are delving into the mysteries of scientific agriculture. There are special lecture courses in art, literature, newspaper writing, and grand opera. The Exposition is being used to supplement the art courses.

Many of these mature students intend to take a rest from their prosaic, every day duties and devote their leisure moments to living the life of the regular college boy and co-ed, with chafing dish spears, toasted marshmallow orgies and gay "hops" galore.

Maybe after our supply of dye stuff is exhausted we kin git a pretty fair idea o' th' ages o' some o' our policemen. "How fer I Kokomo," asked an umbrella mender today. "Oh, about forty-two miles as th' Ford flies," replied Constable Newt Plum.

BILL, YOU'VE GOT FINE LOOKING TEETH FOR A MAN OF YOUR AGE. I WISH YOU'D TELL ME HOW YOU DO IT!

OPEN AIR HOSPITAL EXPERIMENT AT CAMBRIDGE PROVES MOST SUCCESSFUL

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Cambridge, England, July 9.—Cambridge is the home of the most successful hospital experiment that has been attempted in England since the beginning of the war. The First Eastern General Hospital, built early last fall, was an attempt to enlist the largest possible amount of fresh air and sunshine into the treatment of invalided soldiers. The wards are without a wall on the south frontage, being wide open to wind and sun.

After six months' experience, the managers of the hospital declare an unqualified success. Eleven thousand English and Belgian patients have been received from the front and from military camps in England, with only eighty-five deaths—an average of seven-tenths of one per cent. This is regarded as a remarkable record in view of the considerable proportion of septic wounds, tetanus, pneumonia, typhoid, and spotted fever among the patients.

CONVICTS HAVE CAMP IN HEART OF MOUNTAIN DISTRICT IN COLORADO

Parkdale Prison Camp, Colo., July 9.—Here in the heart of one of Colorado's suggested mountain districts is probably the most remarkable municipality in the world.

Seventy-five convicts, including fifty-three burglars and robbers, have a government "of, for and by themselves."

Only once since the camp was established two and a half years ago to work on what will be the most beautiful scenic highway in the world, has there been a violation of any law within the camp's borders.

This consisted of the theft of a package of tobacco. It was a heinous offense and was punished by the greatest punishment possible—the thief was returned to the penitentiary, deprived of outdoor employment and rendered an outcast in the eyes of fellow prisoners.

The day and night marshals in the camp have nothing to do; their officers are merely honorary.

Elections are annually conducted, but arouse great excitement. Notices of primaries are duly posted. The polls are conducted in regular fashion and the successful candidates are ushered into their offices with much formality.

A saloon keeper serving for life for murder was recently elected mayor on the Prohibition ticket. He made a political bargain with the socialists and won.

Treatises and thesis are written by the more learned members of the camp and discussed at town meetings. Principles of good government are favorite topics for debates. Periodically social occasions are conducted inside the big tent, which is known as city hall. The programs consist of recitations, music, vaudeville and other forms of entertainment. The camp has a photograph and 150 good records.

There is a board to pass ordinances and arbitrate disputes. It drafted a constitution. Only twice has it been called upon to settle disagreements.
